

WEEKLY

September 18-22

update

This week brings a week of firsts! Our first math test, our first official cursive letter lesson and our first Religion in our textbook. We are going to have a busy, but super fun week!

I am also going to be out of town this upcoming Friday. Mrs. Kenyon has been so gracious to help out and sub in our classroom for the day. The class is aware and prepared for the change of normalcy!

Have a wonderful week ahead!

WHAT WE ARE LEARNING

Our essential question this week in reading is: "What can traditions teach you about cultures". We will work on visualizing stories as well as characters, settings, and events. We are continuing our first writing project on personal narratives as well.

Our first math test is Tuesday over place value, comparing numbers, and rounding. We will begin our review chapter of addition strategies this week as well.

This week we continue studying social and group behavior with the question: "How can living in a group help or hurt an animal's chances of survival?" If time allows we will jump into our first social studies unit on map features and geography.

In Religion, we are going to learn about the Blessed Trinity: The Father, The Son, and The Holy Spirit. See the attached newsletter on my Sunday email for more information as well as a question you can discuss with your child throughout the week!

REMINDERS

Hi Parents!

With so many different after school activities coming up, I know your child is often busy with extracurricular activities. I would LOVE to come support them outside of the classroom. If you and your child would like me to come to a game, competition, recital, etc. PLEASE send me a note or email me a schedule! I will put it on my calendar and try my best to attend. I cheer for them at school, but I would love for them to know that I am their cheerleader and supporter out there too!

Thank you in advance,

Miss Joines
