

WEEKLY

September 25-29

update

WOW! It's so hard to believe we have made it to the end of September!! This class has truly been so wonderful and has worked so hard this first full month, it makes me so excited for the rest of the year.

This week brings our first switch from science to social studies as well as a chance for us to really dive deep into our Religion textbook.

We will wrap up our personal narratives this week as well!

Here's to a great last week of September!

WHAT WE ARE LEARNING

Our essential question this week in reading is: "What can traditions teach you about cultures". We will work on visualizing stories as well as characters, settings, and events. In grammar we are looking at subjects and predicates. We are continuing our first writing project on personal narratives as well.

This week we are working on addition patterns, adding mentally, estimating sums, and using models to add.

Last week we began reviewing map skills and why/how maps are important. This week we will look at maps of Michigan and discuss important key features of our beautiful state.

In Religion, we are continuing to learn about the Blessed Trinity: The Father, The Son, and The Holy Spirit. See the attached newsletter on my Sunday email for more information as well as a question you can discuss with your child throughout the week!

REMINDERS

Hi Parents!

With so many different after school activities coming up, I know your child is often busy with extracurricular activities. I would LOVE to come support them outside of the classroom. If you and your child would like me to come to a game, competition, recital, etc. PLEASE send me a note or email me a schedule! I will put it on my calendar and try my best to attend. I cheer for them at school, but I would love for them to know that I am their cheerleader and supporter out there too!

Thank you in advance,

Miss Joines
